Re: Inquiry Regarding Submission to AER

Dear Professor Luttmer,

I was pleased to see one of my pre-print papers recently cited by the AEA, which prompted me to inquire whether the American Economic Review has considered publishing work authored by MSc postgraduates.

My research focuses on household utility derived from wage bargaining with firms under conditions of oligopolistic competition. I am currently refining the paper referenced in the recent citation—Pareto-Nash Reversion Strategies: Three-Period Dynamic Cooperative Signaling with Sticky Efficiency Wages—to incorporate an adjustment to the key proposition in Blanchard and Kiyotaki (1987).

If the journal has any interest in this work, I would be delighted to provide further details and answer any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Alfred Anate Mayaki (Student)
